

NewRochellePatch

About Town

By Taryn Grimes-Herbert January 13, 2011

OPINION, THE NEIGHBORHOOD FILES

Free Computer Training

If you'd like to improve your computer skills, New Rochelle Public Library can help. Let's face it. Without computer skills, it's impossible to compete in today's job market.

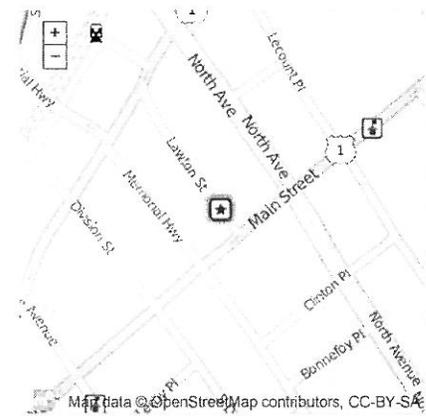

According to a recent press release, and thanks to new funding through the New York State Library, New Rochelle Public Library (<http://newrochelle.patch.com/listings/new-rochelle-public-library>) has been able to expand its computer training classes. As of Feb. 1, they will offer 26 sessions a month.

All computer classes are free, and you can learn anything from basic keyboard skills or how to set up an email account, to creating documents, like resumes and business cards.

They are requesting that you register.

For more information, just call 914-632-7878, ext. 2000 or go to the library's Reference Desk.

Go here (<http://events.nrpl.org/evanced/lib/eventcalendar.asp>) to see the New Rochelle Public Library Calendar.

Interested in a follow-up to this article?

About this column: This is a column about what people are talking about in New Rochelle. "About Town" will bring you the latest news, events and neighborhood chatter throughout the day. Got the inside scoop on a new business or promotion? We welcome user submissions—post your comments here or email michael.woyton@patch.com.

Other About Town Articles

Countdown to Valentine's Day
By Taryn Grimes-Herbert

Date Night
By Taryn Grimes-Herbert

The Value of Keeping a Journal
By Taryn Grimes-Herbert

Taking A Lesson from Mother Nature
By Taryn Grimes-Herbert

Snow Angels
By Taryn Grimes-Herbert

See all About Town articles