Searching with Google™

Type your search in the rectangle that appears right under the word "Google".

The blinking input cursor will already be in the search box, so just start typing. The default search is for Web pages.

Click "Google Search", "I'm feeling Lucky" or press Return on your keyboard. Clicking "Google Search" produces regular Google results whereas "I'm Feeling Lucky" takes you to the first search result. It is the page considered most relevant to your search terms. It will often be an official website. Pressing Enter or Return gives you the default search.

One way to narrow down your results is to choose a search option that you are interested in. If you want the latest news pertaining to your search, click on "News", etc.

Narrow the search even further!

Modify your search for better results

Using quotation marks to define a string:

If you are having trouble finding what you are searching for, try putting your search string in quotation marks, which makes Google find the whole string as a single unit rather than searching for each word individually. For example, if you do not know the name of a song but remember some of the lyrics, type in the words that you know in quotation marks. You should find the song immediately.

Using the Minus (-) sign to omit words from your results.

You can place a minus sign in front a word that you want to omit from your search results. For example if you want to search for "nano" and don't want results for the ipod nano to show up you can type "nano - ipod".

Using the Plus (+) sign.

Google ignores common words and characters such as where, the, how, and other digits and letters that slow down your search without improving the results. If a common word is essential to getting the results you want, you can make sure we pay attention to it by putting a "+" sign in front of it. Example: peanut butter +and jelly

The OR operator

Google's default behavior is to consider all the words in a search. If you want to specifically allow either one of several words, you can use the OR operator (note that you have to type 'OR' in ALL CAPS). For example, [San Francisco Giants 2004 OR 2005] will give you results about either one of these years, whereas [San Francisco Giants 2004 2005] (without the OR) will show pages that include both years on the same page.

Fill in the blanks (*)

Sometimes the best way to ask a question is to get Google to 'fill in the blank' by adding a asterisk (*) at the part of the sentence or question that you want finished into the Google search box. Example: Isaac Newton discovered *

Numeric Range Searching

A user can also search a Numeric Range by using three periods (...) in the search. This can be useful for searching ranges of dates, dollar amounts or other numerical searches. The user can also use the Numeric Range boxes on the Advanced Search screen.

Tip: Save time by hitting the return key instead of clicking on "search"

With all the words

Searching Google “with all of the words”. Google automatically assumes the “and” operator between terms in this field unless specified by the user.

The image shows the Google Advanced Search interface. At the top left is the Google logo, followed by the text "Advanced Search". On the top right, there are links for "Advanced Search Tips" and "About". Below this is a search bar area with a "Find results" label on the left. The search bar contains the text "dogs cats". To the right of the search bar is a dropdown menu showing "10 results" and a "Google Search" button. Below the search bar are four radio button options: "with all of the words" (selected), "with the exact phrase", "with at least one of the words", and "without the words". Each option has a corresponding text input field. Below the search bar are several filter sections: "Language" (Return pages written in) with a dropdown menu set to "any language"; "File Format" (Only return results of the file format) with a dropdown menu set to "any format"; "Date" (Return web pages updated in the) with a dropdown menu set to "anytime"; "Occurrences" (Return results where my terms occur) with a dropdown menu set to "anywhere in the page"; and "Domain" (Only return results from the site or domain) with an empty text input field.

Improve your search experience!

In addition to providing easy access to billions of web pages, Google has many special features to help you to find exactly what you're looking for. Some of the most popular features are listed below:

Weather

 To see the weather for many U.S. and worldwide cities, type "weather" followed by the city and state, U.S. zip code, or city and country.

Example:

Stock Quotes

 To see current market data for a given company or fund, type the ticker symbol into the search box. On the results page, you can click the link to see more data from Google Finance.

Example:

Time

 To see the time in many cities around the world, type in "time" and the name of the city.

Example:

Sports Scores

 To see scores and schedules for sports teams type the team name or league name into the search box. This is enabled for many leagues including the National Basketball Association, National Football League, National Hockey League, and Major League Baseball.

All sports data provided by STATS LLC

Example:

Sunrise & Sunset

 To see the precise times of sunrises and sunsets for many U.S. and worldwide cities, type "sunrise" or "sunset" followed by the city name.

Example:

Reference Tools

Calculator

To use Google's built-in calculator function, simply enter the calculation you'd like done into the search box.

Example:

Book Search

If you're looking for results from Google Book Search, you can enter the name of the author or book title into the search box. Then, click on "Books" from the left-hand navigation to view book content. You can click through on the record to view more detailed info about that author or title.

Example:

Earthquakes

To see information about recent earthquakes in a specific area type "earthquake" followed by the city and state or U.S. zip code. For recent earthquake activity around the world simply type "earthquake" in the search box.

Example:

Unit Conversion

You can use Google to convert between many different units of measurement of height, weight, and volume among many others. Just enter your desired conversion into the search box and we'll do the rest.

Example:

Public Data

To see trends for population and unemployment rates of U.S. states and counties, type "population" or "unemployment rate" followed by a state or county. You can click through to a page that lets you compare different locations.

Example:

People Profiles

If you're looking for someone you just met or a long-lost friend, enter the name of that person plus some identifying words about him or her to see a list of people with that name.

Example:

Choosing Keywords

Synonym Search

If you want to search not only for your search term but also for its synonyms, place the tilde sign (~) immediately in front of your search term.

Example:

Dictionary Definitions

To see a definition for a word or phrase, simply type the word "define" then a space, then the word(s) you want defined. To see a list of different definitions from various online sources, you can type "define:" followed by a word or phrase. Note that the results will define the entire phrase.

Example:

Spell Checker

Google's spell checking software automatically checks whether your query uses the most common spelling of a given word. If it thinks you're likely to generate better results with an alternative spelling, it will ask "Did you mean: (more common spelling)?". Click the suggested spelling to launch a Google search for that term.

Example:

Local Search

Local Search

If you're looking for a store, restaurant, or other local business you can search for the category of business and the location and we'll return results right on the page, along with a map, reviews, and contact information.

Example:

Movie Showtimes

To find reviews and showtimes for movies playing near you, type "movies" or the name of a current film into the Google search box. If you've already saved your location on a previous search, the top search result will display showtimes for nearby theaters for the movie you've chosen.

Example:

Health Search

Health Conditions

To see information about a common disease or symptom, enter it into the search box and we'll return the beginning of an expert summary. You can click through to read the entire article.

Example:

Medications

To see information about most generic and brand name prescription drugs in the U.S., enter the drug name into the search box, and we'll display a summary and description of that medication. You can click through links from the National Institutes of Health to get more information about side effects, how to take the medication, precautions, dietary instructions, and what to do if you miss a dose.

Example:

Poison Control

You can quickly find the U.S. poison control hotline (1-800-222-1222) by entering "poison control" or similar phrases into the search box.

Example:

Suicide Prevention

You can quickly find the phone number for the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline (1-800-273-8255) by entering "suicide prevention" or similar phrases into the search box.

Example:

Flu Vaccine Finder

During flu season, search for "flu" to find tips on how to stay healthy from U.S. Health and Human Services and a flu shot locator which uses Google Maps to show you nearby locations offering seasonal and/or H1N1 flu vaccine.

Example:

Trip Planning

Flight Tracking

To see flight status for arriving and departing U.S. flights, type in the name of the airline and the flight number into the search box.

Example:

Currency Conversion

To use our built-in currency converter, simply enter the conversion you'd like done into the Google search box and we'll provide your answer directly on the results page.

Example:

Maps

Looking for a map? Type in the name or U.S. zip code of a location and the word "map" and we'll return a map of that location. Clicking on the map will take you to a larger version on Google Maps.

Example:

Package Tracking

You can track packages by typing the tracking number for your UPS, Fedex or USPS package directly into the search box. We'll return results that include quick links to easily track the status of your shipment.

Example:

Patent Numbers

To search for U.S. patents, enter the word "patent" followed by the patent number into the Google search box and hit the Enter key or click the Google Search button.

Arnold Schwarzenegger: a biography (Google eBook)

Louise Krasiewicz, Michael Blitz

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ 1 Review

Greenwood Publishing Group, 2006 - Biography & Autobiography - 156 pages

From his role in "The Terminator" to his more recent work as Governor of California, Arnold Schwarzenegger has played a major role in American popular culture. This accessible and entertaining biography traces the trajectory of Arnold's career-sports figure turned movie star turned entrepreneur turned politician. Elected as governor of California in 2003, Arnold Schwarzenegger now dramatically and vividly represents the determination and, to a great extent, the

User Review - Steven - Flag as inappropriate

Arnold is a sellout. He is screwing over America for a buck. If you want safe food he ain't it. If you want the protection we are suppose to get from our government. He aint it. He sold us out. He and Clinton and Bush sold us down the river. They are all in the pocket of big business.
