

Suggestions for Promoting Your Library's Summer Reading Program

- The public library can share the CSLP programming manual, official artwork, and materials for Summer Reading at New York Libraries with partnering schools and school libraries.
- Use the Early Literacy and School Library partner manuals, available at www.nysl.nysed.gov/libdev/summer/facts.htm, to partner with schools and childcare providers.
- Connect with your local schools to schedule visits – always let the school librarian know when you will be in their building.
- Share summer reading materials with your school through the school librarian.
- Find out about publicizing Summer Reading at New York Libraries in the school library newsletter; on school library and school web pages; as computer screen savers; slip bookmarks in books at check out.
- Share the Explore New York recreational book lists (<http://www.nysl.nysed.gov/libdev/summer/explore.htm>) with teachers and students. Books on the list touch on the diversity, history, and culture of New York State.
- Use the “A Universe of Stories” Teen Videos as promotional tools to attract teens to the library. Information about the Teen Video Challenge can be found at www.summerreadingnys.org/teens/teens-video-challenge/.
- Use the “A Universe of Stories” PSA as a promotional tool. All information can be found at www.summerreadingnys.org
- Cooperate with the school to build interest in planning a fall follow-up recognition for those who participated in the public library summer reading program.
- Create displays that focus on this year’s summer reading theme. Information and ideas about this year’s theme can be found at www.summerreadingnys.org.
- Encourage children to participate in the State Assembly and/or State Senate summer reading programs. Updates on these programs and ways they are collaborating with Summer Reading at New York Libraries will be sent to public libraries in May.
- Visit the New York State Library’s Summer Reading Program website for reproducible flyers and fact sheets which promote summer reading at www.nysl.nysed.gov/libdev/summer.
- Visit www.summerreadingnys.org for information, art, and reading related activities for educators, families, and children.
- Create an account on the CSLP website, www.csllpreads.org, to gain access to extensive resources available to all NYS public libraries.
- Use the CSLP PSA, available through the CSLP website mentioned above, as a promotional tool.
- Utilize the wealth of resources available in the “Planning” sections of CSLP Manual and DVD.

The goals of Summer Reading at New York Libraries are to:

- Advance literacy and academic performance by engaging children and teens in reading and reading-related activities during the summer months.
- Foster a love of reading through public library programs and services.
- Increase successful reading experiences through librarian-supported, self-selected, voluntary reading.
- Involve parents and all family members in the library summer reading experience.
- Improve children's access to library materials and activities, which will encourage them to become lifelong library users.
- Increase the number of children and teens participating in public library summer reading programs.
