Harnden's Emigrant Passenger Agency.

We learn from Mr. L. S. LITTLEJOHN, Agent of HARNDEN & Co., that during the season of canal navigation, for 1844, commencing in April and ending in November, HARNDEN & Co paid $107,775 21, to the Canal Association of Forwarders, for the transportation of Passengers and their extra luggage upon the Erie Canal. The whole number of Passengers for whom HARNDEN & Co. procured passages were SIXTY THOUSAND, most of whom were immigrants from Europe, seeking a home in the far West. We are assured, also, that this vast business was conducted in a manner satisfactory to all parties.

The arrangements of this enterprising concern are perfect, not only throughout our own country, but extend to Europe, where Passengers, through their Agents, are enabled to ascertain the expense attending their removal to any of the States, and to protect themselves against the extortions and frauds too often practised. Persons in America who wish to send to Europe for their friends, may do so conveniently through HARNDEN & Co. While these intelligent and enterprising men conduct their business as they have heretofore, faithfully and honestly, we hope to see them sustained and rewarded.
